

As we gather with family and friends this weekend, we take time to thank God for the many blessings He has given us. As I celebrate with my own family, I will be giving thanks for each one of our Grace students and their families. Seeing your children each day and observing the unique gifts God has given them is an unending joy.

In this role, I also have the privilege of witnessing firsthand the wonderful work our teachers are doing. Their genuine care, dedication, and love for your children are evident in all they do, and it is truly a blessing to behold.

Please know that your children—and each of you—are deeply appreciated and loved. Your support and all you do for our school community are never taken for granted.

Wishing you God's blessings and peace this Thanksgiving and always.
